Presentation of the topic

The session's focus is on computational and theoretical methods for analyzing invariant/coherent structures in discrete and continuous time dynamical systems, and applications of such methods.

The session will bring together experienced as well as young researchers to exchange ideas and explore recent developments.